Save Money on Outpatient Diagnostic Tests and Imaging Services

Costs for diagnostic tests and imaging services, like labs, X-rays, and high-tech imaging, are often among the highest when they are performed in a general hospital setting. When your health plan renews in 2019, you’ll have lower out-of-pocket costs, such as copayments and co-insurance after your deductible is met, when you go to an independent clinical lab or freestanding imaging center for these services.*

Pay less when you choose non-hospital providers for services, such as:

- Lab work
- CT scans
- MRIs
- Nuclear medicine
- PET (tissue and organs) scans
- X-rays and other imaging tests

Independent Clinical Lab

An independent clinical lab, where you can receive a lower cost share for services, is not part of a hospital or hospital-owned facility. Independent clinical labs perform tests or procedures, such as blood or urine tests, to help diagnose or treat medical conditions. Examples of independent clinical labs include Quest Diagnostics and LabCorp.

Freestanding Imaging Center

A freestanding imaging center is like an independent clinical lab: lower cost share, and not owned by a hospital. Freestanding imaging centers produce specialized images, such as X-rays, MRIs, and ultrasounds, for identifying and diagnosing medical conditions. Examples of freestanding imaging centers include Shields MRI and Premier Diagnostics.

Remember to check with the office staff members at any location, to make sure they have the necessary information to deliver your test results back to your doctor in a timely manner.
